Rubric for Evaluating Resources

Does this balance the vibrancy of pre-war life?
Does this highlight a range of human behavior and not rely on stereotypes (ex: perpetrator, bystander, rescuer, and victim)? Does it emphasize the complexity of human behavior?
Does this resource show that many factors contributed to the Holocaust?
Does the resource avoid over-generalizations (ex: all camps were killing centers; all Germans were collaborators)?
Does it give a balanced account, without overemphasizing heroic actions or only exposing the reader to the worst of human behavior?
Does it provide context that explains how the book fits into the bigger picture of the Holocaust?
Does this resource show choices individuals, groups, and nations made, emphasizing that the Holocaust was not predestined or inevitable?
Does this resource provide various perspectives and geographies of the Holocaust, without contemporary political bias?

SUGGESTED USE:

After reviewing the resource, tally your score. The maximum score is 60.

- A higher score indicates the resource is a good match for your needs.
- A lower score indicates the resource may not include a historically accurate portrayal of the Holocaust.
  - If a required resource has a low score, consider the areas you identified as a weakness and find resources that can provide needed balance.
- Very few, if any, resources will achieve a maximum score. You are the best person to decide what resources are appropriate for your classroom and your students.
